DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1 recites the limitation "the securing element" in lines 8, 10-12.

In claim 7 recites the limitation "the securing element" in lines 4, 6, 8.

There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 7-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Colton et al. (US Pat. 5,218,760).

Regarding claims 7-11, Colton et al disclose a circuit board securing device comprising: a base section including a groove 54a formed by a first and second wall; a securing member 48 that is received by the base section; a first component 51a configured to move the securing element 48 longitudinally within the groove 54a of the base section; a second component 56 configured to keep a second end of the securing element 48 within the groove 54a of the base section; and one or more force-producing devices 28, 30 for moving the securing element 48 closer to the first wall of the base section as the first component is adjusted wherein the first component 51a comprises a screw received through a slot in the base section and into a threaded cavity of the securing member 48 wherein the second component 56 comprises a set screw received through a threaded cavity of the base section and a slot of the securing member wherein the securing member 48 comprises one or more lateral support devices wherein the force-producing devices 28, 30 comprise a plurality of ramps located on the base section and the securing member 48.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Colton et al. (US Pat. 5,218,760) in view of Perotto (US Pat. 3,418,533).

Regarding claim 12, Colton et al. disclose all the subject matter of the claimed invention except for the securing element is a monolithic. However Perotto discloses the monolithic board (see Perotto 's column 6, line 75). Therefore, it would be obvious to one of ordinary skill to modify monolithic board of Perotto into Colton et al's circuit board in order to good in connection within electrical and mechanical design.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Lee (US Pat. 5,757,618) teaches expansion board mounting structure for computers.

Vinson et al (US Pat. 6,687,134) teach card extraction and separation system.
